SNYDER'S TRAVELETTE

I left Bedford one day headed for New Beuna Vista in Juniata township to see what was over there. I went by the "L. H. W." which means Lincoln Highway toward Wolfburg. I didn't stop to talk to any one till in sight of Wolfburg when I stopped a colored man to ask him about a road that led toward the mountain. I asked him where that road went to. He had a stammering in his speech and was slow to answer but finally he stammered out "D-d dat road do-dont go any where it j-i-jist lays right there all de year round. It j-i-jist don't go nowhere boss". That explanation was very satisfactory and I drove on. Then I stopped at a house by the pike and asked who lived there: the lady said that Mr. Wolf lived there. I asked if he was the man Wolfburg was named after. She laughed and said "laws, no-Wolfburg was born before he was." It was named after his forefather or some other Wolf. I asked if she was Mrs. Wolf and she said she was. I told her she was some one else before marriage and was now in "Wolf's clothing" but she didn't catch the significance so I left while times were good. I got through Wolfburg safe. There were several old duffers sitting in the shade talking about the primaries and the Kaiser. I didn't tarry for I am no voter in Bedford county—too young. I passed along the L. H. W. till I saw a man shelling corn. I stopped to interview him as he looked kind of familiar. It proved to be Sherman Amick formerly from Clearville Monroe township. He had bought a farm over there in which he is getting rich. Any how he has an automobile, something which no one owned in Monroe township forty years ago. Next fellow I hailed was John Delancy who lives in a stone house that looks mighty dangerous to live. It may do to die in though if it falls on him some stormy day or night.

I stopped at a house at the junction of the Mann's Choice and Schellsburg roads and spoke to her about the Gazette. "No sir," she said "I am a Republican." I told her I had heard of republicans and Re-publicans before. Daniel Kirchner formerly near Hyndman was working there. He earns his bread by the sweat of his brow according to scripture and will have his reward. I stopped over night at the home of George Knipple. He sweats some too for a living.

Stopping at Mrs. Annie Miller's the dogs greeted me very cordially. They only have seven five of them not old enough to register for taxes. S. J. Herline was hauling farmers shoe polish for his living. A farmer can do well at that business if he manages right. It causes good roasting ears to grow besides some other good things too.

I turned up through the suburb of Mann's Choice called "Leechville" noted for its pretty women. The men work at the tannery and perhaps bring home some fleshings which makes rosy cheeks grow. Anyhow the women look lovely. I passed on till I reached Sulphur Springs when it was time to eat. This a lovely place. A nice hotel in a beautifully shaded location, every place looking cool as a cucumber, clean and healthy, and that fine Sulphur water to drink. If I was rich enough I would board there all the hot summer. It certainly is enticing. Mr. Colvin the proprietor needs some more girls to help cook and take care of the guests. He pays good wages too. Wish I was a girl so I could go there to work, eat drink and sleep. Its good for ones wholesome.

I called to see Grandmother Sarah May but she was out somewhere and I was sorry to miss seeing the old girl again. She is 87 years young and keeps young by reading the Gazette and the "Hogwallow News" which is the proper thing to do. Passing on out through the northern portion of Milligan's Cove it kept raining and raining and the women were "sassy". Many were picking lettuce and pulling onions and other garden sassa. I turned and went down through the gap to Buffalo Mills to pull George Higlegass's lath string which is always hanging out.

"The Lathstring"

Some young people may not know the significance of the lath string hanging out. In olden times door latches were made of wood the lath was so constructed that by pulling the lath string from the outside the door could be opened but if the lath string was pulled inside the door was locked to an outsider and he couldn't get in till some one inside opened the door. When people were not desired on the inside the string was pulled inside. When the lath string was outside it meant come in. You didn't need to knock or ring a bell like we have to do now. You will have to see one of these wooden latches to fully understand its make up but it was without metal fixtures and cost little but the work.

It was primary election day and Kie Brown was the head push on the board. There were three Browns on the board but Kie was the only one with brown stripes up his back, like a ground squirrel. He may get them off some time after this war is over. He has a nice wife.

I stopped at Bard, Tom Kidwell has a store there. He made no attempt to arrest or make me afraid like he did at Fossilville about 25 years ago, but he says that was Henry Logue's fault. I didn't call to see Logue this trip. He has gotten a new wife and I never saw her. Logue may have her trained to arrest strangers. "Safety first" is the motto now a days. She might get scare so easy when a man puts his hand to his hip pocket for his handkerchief.

I drove over to Dan Mary's above

AMERICAN RED CROSS Comfort Knits

The matter of Comfort Knits is quite pressing. The present plan which is considered best is to give a Kit to all men as they embark at the Atlantic Ports. This is much more important than to equip the draftees with a Kit as they leave their home towns for the training camps, and it is hoped the different Chapters will at once send all their Comfort Kits to the place designated by Headquarters instead of shipping to the Division Warehouse. All draftees will ultimately get a Kit but Kits should not be given to them now when men embarking need the Kits much more. We hope that one and all will appreciate the priority of this ruling.

W. H. SOLOMON,
Executive Secretary.

FLYING MACHINE PASSED BACK EAST

Last Tuesday morning early the flying machine which went west by Huntingdon and Altoona a couple weeks ago passed back East over Bedford County. From our correspondents we glean that it passed near New Paris, Spring Hope, Cessna, Imletown, Cypher, slightly north of the Lincoln Highway. It was not high and contained at least one person sailing an American flag.

WEST VIRGINIA MUST PAY VIRGINIA

The U. S. Supreme Court handed down a decision that West Virginia must pay old Virginia as a part divy with interest accumulated all these years, on a public debt when both states were as one. The part W. Va. will have to pay is $12,400,000 but the authorities are up against the proposition of how to make West Virginia come across. The state seems obstinate.

Bedford Man Succeeds

A. H. Whetstone.

Charles R. Mock, Prothonotor of Bedford County has been appointed chairman of the Bedford county National War Savings Committee, to take the place of the late A. H. Whetstone, who conducted the campaign so successfully.

Ex-Vice President Fairbanks Dead.

Charles W. Fairbanks, Ex-Vice President died at his home Tuesday night in Indianapolis, Indiana. He was a statesman, a senator, and a noted writer. He served during Roosevelt's administration and took the oath of office 1905. He was a candidate in the last campaign with Hughes but was defeated by Thomas R. Marshall, both from the same state.

BIG PENSION BILL PASSED

WASHINGTON, June 4—The Civil War Pension Increase Bill was passed today by the Senate 35 to 22. It amends the House bill by increasing the minimum monthly pension to those who served ninety days from $25 to $30, and provides pensions of $32 to $40 a month, according to length of service, for those of seventy-two years or older.

The bill would increase the pension roll by $35,000,000 a year.

Bard. Mrs May would only subscribe for the Gazette if I would stay for dinner. She thought I wouldn't but she knows better now. Mr. Ward and his daughter is anxiously waiting for Joe Barkman to come around with his corn salve. Their corn crop troubles them. I must stop this now and will travelette more next week.

German Submarines Attack American Vessels Off Jersey and Maryland Coasts

Enemy has been known to exist in American waters for a couple of weeks.

TOLL OF DEATHS NOW 58.

The German submarine warfare has reached American waters and succeeded on last Sunday night in sinking three steamers and four schooners, manned with about 1000 people and later on Tuesday, June 4, they had found that one more steamer and three schooners had been disabled by submarine attacks.

A government air-plane discovered Monday morning life boats on the sea filled with people and made the report for help when it was found that the submarines had gotten in their work. It has been known to the government, it is alleged, that submarines have been lurking in the vicinity of Jersey, Maryland and Virginia coasts but no alarm was taken at these reports. The loss, so far, is but 58 lives, enough of course, but so few in comparison to the effort that there is no great cause for alarm. New York is taking precautions against an air raid by having lightless nights and Philadelphia and Baltimore will likely follow the same course. As these large cities make splendid targets for the enemy in the air. It is a campaign that Germany will likely fall down on just as it has around England. The advance in France has been checked by the red-blooded American troops so that it is conceded that the German drive on its second attempt is a failure. The people are remaining stable in their confidence in the government to beat the Germans to it, and we will.

CHAUTAUQUA SEASON TICKET VALUES

For Example Take These Four Attractions.

Is a Chautauqua Ticket worth $2.00?

That's the question we want every man to answer for himself; and in answering it, to consider a few FACTS.

We will have FIFTEEN or more high grade, but distinctly different attractions in the full 6-days' program. They will consist in musical companies, entertainers and lecturers all top-notch quality; in fact the very best the Chautauqua affords (and Chautauqua audiences are a finely discriminating lot, you may be sure.)

In this statement, we are asking you to consider but FOUR of the fifteen or more attractions. They are of an entirely different type, doing altogether different work and about the only respect in which they are similar is in the fact that they are all making good in a very big way; and to hear any one of them would be worth the whole cost of the ticket.

Here are their names: Sergeant Geo. E. Nightingale, Judge Geo. D. Alden, Dean Arthur Holmes and Dr. S. C. Schmucker.

Sergeant Nightingale's Subject will be on the following topics: "On the First Line"; "Without Bombs or Artillery Support"; "The Belgian Atrocities"; "First Gas Attacks on the Western Front"; "Bombing Raids and Counter Attacks"; "Trench Life"; "Part Played by the Artillery"; "No Man's Land"; "Shells and Their Uses"; "Life in the Hospital"; "Care of the Wounded on the Field"; "The Handling of Prisoners"; and "A Statesman's Outlook on the Great World War."

Judge George D. Alden is descended from New England Puritan stock, and representative of its best traits and traditions. He is a power upon the platform. Possessed of a keen, incisive legal mind and with all a Puritan's deep-seated abhorrence of sham, he deals sledge-hammer blows at the present day evils and petty meannesses. He is a ready wit and is exceedingly entertaining. His adroit logic disarms those whom he flays mercilessly with his ridicule and satire. He has been a prominent figure in Lyceum and Chautauqua work for more than fifteen years. This experience has added to his wealth and natural ability, and renders him a most pleasing and at the same time helpful lecturer and popular entertainer.

Dean Arthur Holmes—Eminent Educator, Author and Lecturer, is at present Dean of the Pennsylvania State College and has under his supervision over three-thousand young men. He has been an extensive traveler, and given much study to German philosophy and education. You may expect to hear him discuss the subject "Preparing our Young People for their Future Responsibility" and give the causes why Germany made her bold attempt to rule the world. Every patriot should hear him.

Dr. S. C. Schmucker is one of America's naturalists and scientists. "Whos Who in America" says that he was born at Allentown, Pa., was graduated from Muhlenberg College and received his Ph. D. at the University of Pennsylvania. He will speak to you on the afternoon and evening of the third day. He will analyze the meaning of a flower. He will do it so gently and beautifully, and apply the lessons to human life so aptly that you will be held completely within his grasp.

Now, there are your four—about one-fifth of your program, or perhaps as much as 40 cents' worth.

Is it worth the price?

Then—buy your tickets TODAY—of the Chautauqua secretary or some member of the Chautauqua association. We'll look for you there and your family too.

Complete Government Control of Public Utilities

The government will likely take over all telephone, cable and radio stations. This becomes imperative in these war times to prevent any leak to the enemy.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY COMMITTEE MEETING

The Democratic County Committee met in the Court House last Monday in answer to a Call of the County Chairman for the purpose of electing for the ensuing year a Chairman, treasurer secretaries and five members of the executive committee. Attorney Emory D. Claar, was re-elected chairman and was made treasurer for the next year, Jo W. Tate and M. W. Corle were elected secretaries and F. E. Colvin, W. P. Enfield, R. H. Kay, Nevin Diehl, and E. W. Light were elected members of the executive committee. There was some contest on for treasurer but since Dr. Walter F. Enfield didn't want it he withdrew and Emory Claar, the chairman was elected. When the nominations came for Executive committee seven candidates were named. A great many were surprised to learn that Dr. Walter F. Enfield wanted that too. That wasn't fair and right. He shouldn't have sprung that on the convention. It was such a surprise. It wasn't fair. Then he wrote his own name on the ballots and left the others off. That wasn't fair and right either. He should have left every delegate write his own ballots, without any assistance and begging. It wasn't treating Dr. Campbell right to have just Enfield's name on the ballot written by himself. But of course Dr. Campbell doesn't care. He's like the Doctor. He didn't want it. They are both in the same boat. Neither one wanted it.

A great deal of complaint has been launched in the rural districts of the county against all the officers and candidates of the county coming from Bedford. Heretofore the whole county organization has been located in Bedford. At this meeting an effort was made to divide up the organization somewhat as best we could to have the county represented on the executive Committee. In pursuance of this R. H. Kay of Saxton was nominated, Dr. F. S. Campbell of Hopewell, Nevin Diehl of Bedford township, F. E. Colvin of Bedford Borough and E. W. Light of Hyndman. Mr. Kay, Mr. Diehl, Mr. Colvin and Mr. Light were elected on the first ballot, Dr. Enfield and Dr. Campbell making a tie and on the second ballot Dr. Enfield defeated Dr. Campbell, thus thwarting the ambition of the country districts but as Shakespeare puts it, "Tis not as deep as a well, nor wide as a garm door but tis enough and 'twill do" and we will go ahead with the campaign just the same to win the victory this fall and put the Brice—Jordan—James—Smith—Penrose contingent out of business so that they wont have any reasons to file exemptions to serve their country.

On motion of Mr. Matt, of Everett a committee was drawn to adopt strong resolutions endorsing the administration of the war and pledge of loyalty to the president, Woodrow Wilson.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES

The County Board of Farmers' Institute Managers, will meet at the Co. Commissioners' office on the second Tuesday of June, to arrange for the place where Institutes are to be held this season. All of our people who desire Institutes, ought to attend this meeting and present their claims. This Board is composed of the Local Member of the State Board of Agriculture, and one representative from each County Agricultural Society, the Pomona Grange, County Alliance and other kindred organizations. If you find that you cannot attend this meeting, address a letter with your request to the Chairman of Board of Institute Managers, care of County Commissioners.

Saxton Principal Accepts Position

Prof. H. S. Alshouse, who four years ago succeeded Prof. H. D. Metzgar as principal of the Saxton schools and has been in charge of the schools there ever since has accepted the position of principal of the schools of Williamsburg, Blair county, at a salary of $150 per month. The salary at Saxton was $100. Prof. Alshouse has been active in all educational interests of this country and his many friends wish him well in his merited promotion.

WILLIAM M. LAYTON Monroe

Tuesday night at about 10.30 William M. Layton, of near Mattie, died in the Roaring Spring Hosuital after undergoing an operation the last of March returning home for a few weeks and having been taken back to the hospital on June 26.

He was born in Everett, June 19, 1835, and was the son of John and Sophia (Mearkle) Layton and was reared until 15 or 16 years old on a farm near Gapsville when his father bought the place near Stephen's Chapel. Mr. Layton was married three times. His first wife was Chloe Means to which union two children are now living. John E. Layton, of Mattie and Mrs. Joseph Elm, of Detroit, Michigan. His second wife was Rebecca Jane (Wink) Layton, maiden name, Wink and was married first to a Layton, of the same name and to this union there are five children living: Samuel C. Layton, of Hanley, W. Va.; Howard, of Jopha, Montana; Miss Jennie Layton, Woodward, Iowa; Mrs. Jonas Williams, Everett, Rt. 3, and Harry, at home. His third wife was Hannah (Whitfield) Straight, being a widow with her maiden name, Whitfield. No children were born to the last marriage.

He will likely be buried Saturday morning if his son, Howard, can reach home in time. If not, then Sunday. The funeral will take place at Rock Hill Christian church.

Mr. Layton was a great worker, a jolly good fellow and a friend of everybody. He was kind and clever to everybody, rich and poor alike, and would sacrifice most any possession to help a poor neighbor in distress, but when he made up his mind on a question he possessed adamant will power to stay to it. He was widely known throughout that section as a farmer of strength and ability and most every body knew Mr. Layton.

MRS. MARY E. ROCK Bedford Township

Widow of Thomas Rock died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ella C. Koonitz, May the 8th, 1918, aged 77 years. She leaves one brother, Mr. Daniel Allison of Altoona, Pa., one sister, Miss Catherine Allison, Bedford, Pa., and the following children, Mr. Wm. B. Rock, Berwyn, Md., Mr. George H. Rock, Pittsburgh, Pa., Mrs. Ella C. Koonitz, Bedford Township, Miss Emma J. Rock, Bedford Township.

Interment in Pleasant Valley cemetery.

(Harrison Township puts Red Cross Over the Top.)

Having noticed in last week's issue notes from other townships and boroughs concerning the work done during Red Cross week, we are rather prompted by a spirit of pride or better still Patriotism to make known through these columns how our people are (Doing their bit).

By way of preparation for the work of raising our quota $630 Team captain W. H. Mowry called a meeting of all workers Friday May 17th, and appointed solicitors for each district, there was also a Red Cross Rally in the Cove church the following Sunday a. m. at which the work of the Red Cross and the war situation were very ably discussed by Rev. Dittmar and W. H. Mowry. This meeting was well attended and we believe did much toward the successful campaign that followed. During the week the solicitors raised about $400 this looking good but still a considerable amount short it was decided to take the regular time of the Epworth League meeting Sunday evening May 26th, and again place the matter before the people. After short talks by W. H. Mowry, H. E. Stouffer, M. D. Meyers, W. C. Shoemaker, A. A. and E. O. Hyde the sum of $130 was raised from the congregation with a little more work the day following our total was made $700 or $70 over the top, among the subscriptions were $10 each from the Ladies and Mens Bible classes of Buffalo Mills.

The solicitors were very much pleased with the generosity of the people in general, and do not believe the Kaiser would want to stop long in Harrison township.

C. S. SHIPPING BOARD RECRUITING SERVICE.

Frank W. Jordan, Jr., Special Agent.

In the window of Jordan's Drug Store on E. Pitt Street, there is displayed a double-page advertisement from a current issue of a great national weekly that brings the war on the sea directly home to this section, and to the store where the advertisement appears. The proprietor of the store has a personal interest in the advertisement also, for it relates to war work that he is doing for the Government. Furthermore, he helped pay for it.

The advertisement asks for 50,000 men, between 21 and 30, for service in the new Merchant Marine. In the language of its headline, it offers "50,000 jobs at sea" to clean-cut young Americans. It states that the U. S. Shipping Board will give them special training before putting them into actual sea service, carrying supplies to our armies and Allies in the fighting fields of Europe. So much importance is attached to this work that men accepted for it are exempted from a call to military duty.

At Jordan's Drug Store young men may now "sign on" for training and subsequent sea duty in the U. S. Merchant Marine.

The personal interest of Mr. Jordan in this striking war announcement, is contained in the concluding words of the advertisement.

Dr. Enfield says he would have been defeated for member of the Democratic Executive Committee if he had not been there. Sure! How can you expect to give the country districts representation in the Democratic organization without defeating the Bedford people when the Bedford people persist in running? It is a self-evident truth. The Chairman, two Secretaries and one member of the executive committee are enough for Bedford.

A meeting of the Civic Club will be held in the Trust Building on Monday evening, June 10 at 7.30.

To Train America's Future Men and Women

There is no more important work—at any time—than the training of the youth of a nation. We must win the war, but while we are winning it, we must preserve Democracy and prepare for a better Democracy for the future. Teaching is now more than ever a patriotic calling, and a national necessity. Trained workers are the only kind that are wanted. A course of study and training—including actual teaching experience—at the STATE NORMAL SCHOOL of Indiana, Pa.

Will fit you for this national service. The demand for trained teachers greatly exceeds the supply. The work is inspiring, noble and patriotic.

Indiana is a school of ambitious workers under the guidance of a faculty of fifty experienced teachers. Beautiful and healthful location. Christian influences. Athletics. Modern buildings splendidly equipped. $240 covers all expenses (excepting rental of books) for school year of forty weeks for one preparing to teach, and includes board room, laundry and term fees.

In connection with the Normal School are—The Indiana Conservatory of Music, The Indiana School of Business, and a Domestic Science School.

The Indiana Catalog—one of the most beautiful and interesting of books about schools ever published—free on request.

Better than metal.

Certain-teed is fast taking the place of metal roofs, not only because of the scarcity and high cost of metal, but because is superior in every important roofing quality. Metal easily rusts and disintegrates from atmospheric gases. Certain-teed cannot rust and its asphalt base makes it practically immune to any form of corrosion.

Metal absorbs heat and transmits it to the interior of a building. Certain-teed insulates against heat and cold, and makes the building cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

Metal must be painted frequently. Certain-teed gives years of weather-proof service practically without any upkeep expense.

Metal is noisy in wind or storm. Certain-teed fully deadens sound from such sources.

Metal is not safely guaranteed. Certain-teed is absolutely guaranteed 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness, and actually gives longer service than its guarantee.

Metal is a direct drain on military materials. Certain-teed is made principally of waste rags and asphalt—materials which have no military use whatever.

Certain-teed has proved its efficiency and economy for every kind of roofing service—factories, warehouses, hotels, stores, farm buildings, outbuildings, etc.

Certain-teed is more economical and more efficient in service than metal or any other type of roof. Certain-teed is the best quality of roll roofing—it costs no more to lay than ordinary roll roofing and lasts much longer. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Please Do Not Ask Our Operators for the Correct Time

A Necessary War-Time Request

WHEN a subscriber lifts his telephone receiver and asks: "What is the time, please?" the same service on the part of the operator, the same length of time and an equal use of telephone equipment generally are necessary as are required to complete an ordinary telephone call.

In every telephone central office there is a switchboard with a certain number of operators' positions; at each position is an operator; before each operator a certain number of subscribers' lines terminate. If these telephone facilities are taxed to their utmost and a large percentage of the calls is for the time of day, the telephone user will appreciate that to eliminate such calls will permit a reassignment or redistribution of both operators' service and telephone equipment and result in our being able to care for the abnormal demands of the present, and the even greater demands that we feel will be made upon our service in the months to come.

Every true American sees his personal obligation in the great National task at hand. The Telephone Company is keenly alive to the responsibility that rests upon it. Will you make only the necessary telephone calls and so assist this Company in its service?

PENROD ON THE U. S. S. G. ARMY
by Booth Tarkington.
HON. FRANKLIN K. LANE, THE
SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON:

Dear Mr. Secretary—A kind of friend of mine told me you wrote to him to tell me to write a letter about raising vegetables to eat and all. His name is Mr. Tarkington or something like that and he said he would address the letter and all and write what is at the top of this letter to start with. Well Miss Spence said our class better join the U. S. School Garden Army and when she says we better why usulay we got to. Besides she said the U. S. Government says so too and it is the School Garden Army is an Army of the U. S. Government and if we belong to it we are just as much in the army as if we had guns, and will get a badge and all and besides can get some money by selling the vegetables. Well, I would like to have some money and so would any other boy and girl. Besides this would do it anyway because if I am in the U. S. S. G. I am in the army and have a badge. And I can eat some of the vegetables myself and all. Well any body wants to be in the army of course, so I am now a going to be a member of the army. Any body what says I am not going to be ask who ever they like they will tell them quick enough I am going to be in the Army because I am going to be in the U. S. S. G. Army. It has the U. S. before it and I guess that is enough for me I guess.

Well so we thought we better get some practice raising some vegetables, so we went to Sam Williams' yard and got two colored boys so as to have them to do their own house. These two colored boys they used to live in the country out about five and one half miles and they know how to raise cabbage and all.

Well, Sam said we could dig up his back yard and he would help some. We also got some seeds that we got by trading some old iron to the rag man, and we had onion seed and we had some potatoes eyes and some corn. Well, it did not look like much use. You can dig up a yard and put these things in and cover them up, and maybe put some rich dirt on top, and it does not look like much use. I tell you. Well, we sat around there after school for several days; when we had put all these things in the ground we felt like we wished they would come up so we could look at them.

This is not the first time Sam and I have planted seed because I expect in our time we have planted more cherry stones and peach stones and orange seeds and lemon seeds and apple seeds and once we must have planted anyway 1,000,000 seeds in our yard but you could go to the place 1,000,000 times and look at it for a couple of hours if you wanted to, but you would never see any difference. But that was when we were little and now we are going to be in the U. S. S. G. Army of course we would know better. When we were little we would just as leaf do our planting in October as any other time.

Well so one morning before school Sam Williams called me to come over there and he was all hopping when I got to our farm because there was a little plant sticking up out of the ground and signs of some more coming with little leaves and all. I tell you we never did feel better than we say that because it was our own little plant on our own little farm and it made us feel hungry like we wanted to eat it ourselves rich away but we did not because of course it would be to young and if we went and eaten it we could not sell it. Well, we were pretty glad all day and after school we sat and looked at our farm and pulled some weeds out and we could see this plant was already some bigger. Sam said it was going to be potatoes and I thought onions. Verman said corn but he probably said that because he is tonniefied and it was the easiest for him to say.

Well anyway we thought a great deal of our plant and Sam said he never did like any plant as much as he did that one and so did I because, when you have raised a plant it is different from any plant. And Sam said they were coming up so fast now we would probaly have 100 by tomorrow morning.

Well we did not. I went there before school next morning and Sam said look what happened and he was almost crying because this is what had gone on. Well some old chickens had been there and they had scratched up our whole farm up the vile old chickens and eaten up all our seeds that had not sprouted and there was not any farm left.

When we called the two colored boys an they were as mad as any thing but they said if they could find those chickens they knew what they would do with them and so we would begin all over again and make a new farm, because the spring was early yet and if those chickens came back well just let them try it that's all.

Well in school Miss Spence told us some more about the U. S. S. G. the Army. She said there would be directors to tell us what to do to make our little farms, and would come where the farm was like Sam's back yard for instance sometimes, and would tell us all how to get the farm going so we can see our own vegetables coming up pretty as anything and sell them and make money and be in the Army. On the badge a captain will have three stars and if Sam is a first lieutenant he will get two stars and if Herman is a second lieutenant he will get one star and Verman will get a badge too.

So we are going to start our farm again and it is going to be a mighty good farm. She said this army was going to have 5,000,000 boys and girls, just as many as there will be soldiers in the army, and our farm is going to be the best because we have already got the experience of one farm and we would not take anything for how we felt when we saw our own plant coming up and getting ready to eat. That is a kind of a feeling nobody knows how much excitement there is in it till you see your own plant coming up like that.

Well and so that is about all because our army is getting ready to begin and help win the war and see their own plant coming up. Well we have got some pretty spades and hoes and rakes and trowls and we found where those vile hens came from. They belong to old Mr. Tronket lives three doors up the street from Sam so we thought we better warn this old Tronket and we wrote him a note it said if any more vile hens found on our farm they will then be the property of a poor colored family that is in need.

So we expect there will probably be no more trouble and pretty soon some morning we will see our own plants coming up again and will all be looking at our own good old plants and wearing our badge of the U. S. S. G. Army.

Yours sincerely,
Penrod Schofield.

PLANNING THE KITCHEN.

In planning a new home or remodeling an old one it should always be borne in mind that the placing of the stove, sink, and work table in such a way as to secure the advantages of a compact workshop, will save the housekeeper many steps in the tasks of the kitchen. Time and energy will also be saved if the shelves, cupboards, and drawers are located near the place where the supplies or equipment which they are to contain are to be used, and they will be even more convenient if they are so planned that their contents may be easily and quickly removed or replaced. In selecting the equipment only that which is most convenient and durable should be purchased. As in any well-regulated workshop, all the convenience of the worker should be supplied, but that equipment should be installed first of all which will be used most often, and it should be of such a character and so located that it will result in the greatest saving of labor.

1. NEW CLARS

Designed for the nation's first war-time currency—Federal reserve bank notes of one dollar and two dollar denominations were approved by the Treasury and the new bills will make their appearance in general circulation about July 4. An expression of the war period is given to the reverse side of the new two dollar note in the design of one of the newest battle ships. The face of this note bears a portrait of President Thomas Jefferson. The face of the one dollar note carries a portrait of President George Washington and the reverse side has a design of the spread eagle clutching in a warlike attitude, the American flag. The bills are intended to replace silver certificates, about three hundred million dollars of which have been withdrawn in the last two weeks from circulation, as the silver which secured them was melted into bullion under the new silver act.

The sinking of a few ships which were not protected along the New Jersey coast does not set the American people into any great frenzy. It is a result to be expected and does not serve any great German purpose. If the Germans think they can alarm us at home sufficient to bring back our vessels in European waters for protection of our American coast they can guess again for our navy is amply sufficient to safeguard our own shores far beyond any great deceptions that may be committed.

A few casualties are expected of course but there won't be many. If they hope to encourage their people at home it won't serve that purpose either except as they inflate the reports. The only purpose of the raid on neutral vessels and of the whole sale disregard for law and decency, is to bring one more nail into their coffin and make the disposition of these criminals, outlaws and beasts of hell more severe in the end. The American people and the American navy are grounded on justice and mercy but with the accused actions of Germany we cannot see any punishment ever devised sufficient to in any measure balance the scales with the Germans on the one side. Just extinguishing the German empire is not enough. Just to capture and punish the Kaiser is not enough. In reality human intellect is not sufficient to devise any penalty sufficient to redress the vast wrongs committed, vile acts performed, and the solemn obligation broken between men and nations and it is left only to the Almighty to meet out such superlative penalty as he sees justifiable.

So far as mercy is concerned the American people have it in abundance but at the conclusion of this awful struggle there can be no mercy for Germany. We cannot see how any mercy of the least proportions can be extended to a nation which has done depredations far beyond our ability to punish. That must not be left to our Creator and their Creator, to meet out to them as he sees fit.

The navy of the United States will be kept at its post in the European waters and enough on this side to protect us. There is no question about that. Let Germany put up her warfare to the utmost for when the finalities come Germany will be thrown into hell all in a heap.

We deprecate the loss of our sailor boys but the taking of these few lives only makes America stronger for revenge and revenge is sweet. That damned hell-hole will be cleaned to a finish when the time comes, and we don't think it will be long. It takes the lives of our dearest friends to assuage the hellish appetite of that beast in Germany but if God ever grants us the privilege to get to him, his infernal corporeal frame will never make meat even for the commonest cur.

This submarine warfare off our coast is only to serve to make us realize what we have to face. We mean to hunt down these assassins to a finish and the Secretary of the Navy has the greatest confidence that it can do it and it will do it and instead of causing a panic stricken, terrorized people it has brought out a determined, bloodthirsty feeling of revenge.

LET THEM SERVE

You cannot create interest in the Democratic party or any other party by telling the people to be interested. Talk doesn't win anything. You must show an interest for the people by electing part of the organization at least from various parts of the county. There are dozens of good people out in the country districts fit for representations in our organization and on our tickets. Don't talk so much harmony when you won't harmonize yourself. You must first harmonize with the sentiment of the people and give them representation and stop butting in. That's harmony. For years the very fellows who are talking harmony and interest never showed any interest until recently. Why didn't they show any interest and attend the Conventions? Because they weren't represented in the organization. Why do they show interest now? Because they are now represented. Give the country districts representation and they will show interest and not before.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Government Control of Express Companies.

July 1st next the Date.

No doubt many of the oldest citizens can remember the beginning of the Express business in the United States. It had its real inception in the year 1839 when a man began carrying packages by hand from New York to Boston, going some times by boat, sometimes by hack. His business grew so that he had to increase his facilities for carrying and so engaged the boats and transportation companies on a contract basis to do the carrying for a time after he had carefully prepared them for transportation. Others found out he was making money so they instituted like practices between other stations and thus it spread until organizations began to be formed and contracts made by which all cities in the United States were connected, either by mail or coach or boat. These smaller companies merged and merged until they narrowed down to but four of National service, Adams, American, United States and Wells Fargo Express companies.

These companies made enormous profits from their enterprise. The Wells Fargo shares rose from $100 par value to $600 to $700 and the year it reached nearly $700 a share on the market it declared a dividend of 300 per cent.

John Wanamaker gave the shot for their decline when he was postmaster general under President Harrison. At that time he made a strenuous effort to have larger and more varied articles admitted to the mails and when he made the proposition he was surprised to find that the companies had themselves so strongly entrenched in the Congressional halls at Washington that he could not budge an inch toward his proposition. Then he made the remark which dealt them the heavy blow. He said "there were just four reasons why we cannot have a parcel post in this country and they are Adams, American, United States and Wells Fargo Express Companies. The sentence was to the point and its effect was most far reaching and today through the supreme efforts of Congressman David J. Lewis of Cumberland, Maryland, the United States Postal Service is carrying packages to the very doors of the people which previous to January 1st 1913 came to local centers by express and then. And that day, January 1 1913, marked the decline of the Express Companies in earning capacity until their stocks fell below par $75 to $80 a share and no dividends could be declared. And more recently when the packages which could be carried by parcel post were admitted up to 70 pounds the express companies got another severe jolt. So the effect of the parcel post and the extreme war times have driven the companies to a merger into the American Railroad Express Company with the government as a big partner and the Wells Fargo American, Adams and United States will be no more and Wanamaker's four reasons for a parcel post in the United States have vanished.

Miniature Violin Inside of Cane.

For the modern Romeo and his midwife in seconds a walking-stick violin might have certain advantages. At any rate such a combination instrument has been fashioned. The cane is made of bamboo and by removing a well-fitted section the strings are uncovered. The bow is withdrawn through one end of the stick. The queer instrument is shown in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Dickens and the Pigs.

Charles Dickens, writing of his observations in a trip to this country, described as one of the incidents which attracted his attention to the numerous pigs he saw sunning themselves in downtown streets. Long before the time of which he wrote, pigs had been a source of much revenue, and many were the protests that followed the action of passing an ordinance prohibiting the keeping of them.

The Story's End

By GENEVIEVE ULMER

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

"All the romances in the story books end happily—every one of them. I wonder if mine is only what the writers call an incident, or a circumstance."

Thus Leila Thorpe, meditating dreamily over an event which had quite taken her mentality out of its every-day, humdrum beaten track. She was a simple country girl, with no social ambitions outside of the little village where she had always lived. Of course the few times she and a few of her friends had attended some special parties up at the big summer resort hotel had been pleasant and enticing, but somehow, come to think it over afterwards, there was little worth remembering about the superficial belles of society and their shallow, insincere escorts.

"He was so courteous and handsome," sighed Leila, continuing her fond reverie. "Probably I won't ever meet him again and I don't even know his name, but it's hard to forget him."

For never had Leila been so near to a member of the opposite sex, never had a pair of such admiring, magnetic eyes fascinated her own. Why, she had been quite in his arms, but that was unavoidable under the circumstances, and he had released her the moment he had pulled her and himself to safety.

For there had been danger. Leila shuddered as she recognized how narrowly she had escaped serious injury, perhaps death. It had happened all in a moment—a misstep along a familiar path, a sway over the edge, a scrambling hold of frail tree roots, with terrifying depths yawning far below. She had screamed once. Then a deadly faintness was overcoming her as she was conscious that a human form was dangling beside her. A firm arm encircled her waist.

"Don't think of conventionalities," a gentle, but steady voice conjured her. "Put both arms around my neck and hold on for your life."

He was not near when she recovered consciousness, but a bubbling bevy of her girl friends were excitedly discussing him.

"Brave as a lion—a true cavalier!" chimed a sentimental voice.

"And so superbly cool! I think he is a doctor," joined in a second voice. "He looked like a tragedian and has the eyes of a poet," asserted a third member of the group.

None of them had ever seen the mysterious young man. If they had followed him they would have found that he was a new arrival at the town hotel. He was registered simply as Elliot Marvin.

Now, Elliot Marvin, when he risked his life to rescue pretty Leila Thorpe, had unknowingly dropped a rolled-up bundle of written sheets, which had been blown by the breeze into a nest of wild briar bushes. There Leila's little brother, wandering about, found it the next day. He proceeded home with his prize and Leila discovered him stringing the odd dozen sheets together, making a kite.

"Why, it's a story!" exclaimed Leila, glancing over the pages, supplied her brother with other material for his kite and became at once interested in a pretty idyl of a romance. A keen disappointment crossed her face as the last page left the story unfinished.

One of Leila's friends located the young man. He had gone for a day or two to a neighboring town, but was to return. The next day Leila reread the story. She was seized with the impulse to complete it herself. She did so and read it to her closest friend, Minnie Lull.

"Why, Leila!" she cried, "you have just made a most famous ending to that sweet, pretty romance—and so they were married and lived happy ever afterwards!"

Greatly excited, Minnie burst in upon her friend the next day. "Oh, Leila," she fluttered, "what do you think? A notice is tacked up in the post office asking the finder of that story to return it to its owner—who do you think?"

"I can't imagine," said Leila.

"Mr. Elliot Marvin—at the hotel. And he has returned. Let us take it to him at once, just for a lark."

But Leila only left it. The hotel keeper knew her. He reported her name to Mr. Marvin. The next day the latter quietly asked to be directed to her home.

Leila fluttered and her mother gave a warm welcome to the young man who had saved her daughter's life. She invited him to tea. When he and Leila were alone Elliot Marvin said:

"I thank you doubly for your trouble with my poor story, Miss Thorpe." Leila looked unenlightened and inquiring. "You brought the poor scrawl back to me and brought it back finished."

Leila gasped. For the first moment she realized that not only had she returned the lost pages, but her own last page. Leila's face turned red as a rose. She could not meet the half quizzical, wholly admiring glance of her visitor.

"And so I have acted out your beautiful ending to my story," said Elliot Marvin, the day he proposed to Leila, "and we have found ourselves of one mind."

"And so—" whispered Leila hiding her face on his shoulder.

"They were married and lived happy ever afterwards."

DEAN ARTHUR HOLMES

Eminent Educator, Author and Lecturer.

The National Lincoln Chautauques brings to your community one of the nation's foremost educators, Dr. Arthur Holmes. As Dean of Pennsylvania State College he has directed the minds and the morals of thousands of young men and sent them forth with renewed ambitions and higher ideals to fight the battles of life. Although children and problems of children have been Dean Holmes' specialty, yet in his graduate work and travels he has made an extensive study of German philosophy and German education. Why Germany selfishly plunged the world into war, and the preparation of the child for future responsibility, are the vital topics to be interestingly discussed by Dean Holmes on the afternoon and evening of the fourth day.

For fifteen years Dean Holmes has been a prominent figure in the nation's educational gatherings. He has the voice and the magnetic power of an O'Connell and the physique and logic of a Webster. Every father, mother, and patriot should hear him.

HARRIE BLAND

Director of Bland's Orchestra.

Harrie Bland has a national reputation as an organizer and director of orchestras and bands. He is to the orchestra what Crentore is to the band. This is Harrie Bland's seventh year with the Lincoln System. He has toured all the circuits, some twice, appearing in seventeen states and giving more than a thousand programs.

Director Bland will be heard in a new feature this year. He aims to present in the afternoon a singing band, and an orchestra at night. These programs will be presented with their appropriate costumes. There will be a great variety of quartettes, duets, solos, in voice and in brass. Aim to make the fourth day one of the big musical events of your city. This is positively Bland's last appearance on the Eastern Circuit. DON'T FORGET THE FOURTH DAY.

Why Men Are Asked to Surrender Their "Personal Liberty"

There was a time when men honestly believed they had a right to own slaves—because they thought it was purely a question of property rights. But today we know it is also a moral question.

There was a time when men honestly believed that all they needed to do to get a wife was to take a club and hit the woman of their choice on the head and drag her home. But today—well, women have something to say about it, too.

There was a time when men honestly believed they had an absolute right to do with their children as they pleased. But today we recognize the fact that children have rights of their own.

Slaves, women, children—these have come to their own because a new conception of RIGHTS and DUTIES has dawned upon men. They discovered that there is a more fundamental question than property rights—that DUTY is a bigger word than RIGHTS.

And so the weaker members of society are today being given a better chance.

But we still hark back to the "property rights" period and the question of "personal liberty" when we discuss the saloon and the liquor business.

We forget that the bigger thing in this discussion is DUTY and SACRIFICE—for the sake of the weaker members of society—that we should be ready to give up our "rights" when the well-being of mankind as a whole is concerned.

The man who is ready to do this proves that he's a BIG man—the LITTLE man always stands out for his "rights," no matter what happens.

The man who insists that his "personal liberty" gives him the right to drink liquor and support saloons—and that he proposes to exercise this right—is asking thousands of men and women and children to make a greater sacrifice and to suffer infinitely more because the saloon is licensed, than HE would suffer or sacrifice were the saloon to be closed.

A false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren.

The women of the small village in Scotland who sat up all night to make a flag for the American soldiers lost on the Tuscana, will not soon be forgotten. Mrs. W. H. Falt, director of publicity for the Daughters of the American Revolution, in recounting the story, said: "After the sinking of the Tuscana, a woman in the little Scotch coast town where the bodies were washed ashore found a tiny American flag on one of the boys. She and the other woman of the village determined that the Americans should be wrapped in their own flag for burial, and they sat up all night making a flag, copying the small one the woman had found."

SERGEANT GEORGE E. NIGHTINGALE

Sergeant George E. Nightingale, who will deliver his famous lecture on "TWO YEARS IN THE DEVIL'S PLAYGROUND," on the second day of Chautauqua, is a descendant of Florence Nightingale. He has seen twenty-two months of active service with the First Battalion of the Canadians. He suffered bullet and shrapnel wounds in the limbs, body and head in going over the top. He was brought to the United States by the government during the campaign of the second Liberty Loan, where he has more than $4,500,000 of subscriptions to his credit.

HE HAS THIRTY-THREE OF HIS KIN WHO HAVE SERVED IN THE WAR. As he puts it, "None of them in 'bomb-proof' service. One has been killed, eleven wounded, two invalided." Says he, "We as a family stand for DEMOCRACY and the rights of civilization, and all are ready to die fighting for these principles and for the King and Empire." He is a highly polished and a well educated gentleman. He is a rapid-fire speaker, and when it comes to selling Liberty Bonds, putting it "over the top" for the Y. M. C. A., and talking patriotism, he has few equals in America today.

DO NOT FAIL TO HEAR THIS MAN DIRECT FROM THE TRENCHES. SECOND DAY.

JUDGE GEORGE D. ALDEN

Judge Alden is descended from New England Puritan stock, and representative of its best traits and traditions. He is a power upon the platform. He is a ready wit, and is exceedingly entertaining. His adroit logic disarms those whom he flays mercilessly with his ridicule and satire. He has been a prominent figure in Lyceum and Chautauqua work for more than fifteen years. This experience has added to his wealth of natural abilities, and renders him a most pleasing and at the same time helpful lecturer and popular entertainer. With great world problems looming up on our national horizon, your community may expect from Judge Alden safe and sane discussion of these problems.

LIVE OUT OF THE GARDEN.
City Families Who Have Back-Yard Gardens Will Need to Do Very Little Buying in the Markets This Summer—Some Suggestions from the United States Department of Agriculture.

LIVE OUT OF THE GARDEN.
Live in the garden, if you like, but by all means live out of the garden. Every time you take a meal out of your garden, you save the equivalent in other foods to be used in winning the war.

That is one side of it. Every time you take a meal out of your own garden you save money—good, hard money that can be used for any one of a score of things that would make the family more comfortable—or for investment in Liberty Bonds, Thrift Stamps and Safety.

That's the other side. And the bed-rock bottom of it is that you have a better, more wholesome summer meal than if you had gone to market and bought a lot of meat and stuff.

Make the most of the home garden.

Study it. Maybe you already know all of the delicious ways in which all sorts of garden truck can be prepared for the table. If you do, be a philanthropist. Import some of your knowledge to your neighbor. If you do not, get the information that the United States Department of Agriculture has gathered on that subject—and apply it.

All over the country war gardens have been planted to raise food to help halt the Hun.

This summer millions of cans of vegetables will be put up by canneries and housewives for winter use, but every one should have a chance to eat the fresh vegetables while they are at their best. If you have more than you can use now, sell them to your less fortunate neighbor who has no garden. What can't be used fresh, can for winter.

One of the safest rules for keeping well is to eat a variety of food. Vegetables are a great help in giving variety to your meals.

Eat vegetables every day. Many are mild lavative and they are better than medicine. They help keep you and your family well.

Use many kinds and lots of them. Let them take the place of part of the meat and bread you are using today. Don't think that because vegetables contain so much water they are not good food. They are one of the very best foods to have. Vegetables have their own particular part in the diet which neither meats nor cereals nor fruits nor sweets can play.

LESSON FOR JUNE 9

JESUS FACES BETRAYAL AND DENIAL.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:10-72.
GOLDEN TEXT—Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation.—Mark 14:38.
DEVOTIONAL READING—John 18:1-17.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Matthew 26:20-29; Luke 22:17-20; John 13:1-35.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and his disciples.—Mark 14:12-26.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus betrayed and denied.

I. Judas' Bargain With the Chief Priests (vv. 10, 11).

This black crime was committed immediately following the beautiful act of devotion by Mary. The motive actuating Judas was avarice. This awful depth of infamy was not reached at a bound. Because he did not master this besetting sin at the beginning, he was conquered by it.

II. The Last Passover (vv. 12-25).

1. The preparation (vv. 12-16).

In reply to the disciples' inquiry as to where they should prepare the Passover for him, Jesus told them to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they should follow. In the house to which they were thus led would be found a guest chamber—a large upper room—where they could make ready the Passover. This is an example of Christ's superhuman knowledge. He not only knew that the disciples would meet this man, but he knew that Judas had bargained for his betrayal.

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-21).

The betrayal was to be by one of the disciples who was eating with Jesus. This betrayal had been predicted, though such prediction did not interfere with the free act of Judas in the betrayal. It was because of this act of treachery being freely committed by Judas that Jesus pronounced upon him the awful doom—"Good were it for that man if he had never been born."

3. The bread and the cup instituted (vv. 22-25).

III. The Disciples' Cowardice Foretold (vv. 26-31).

In spite of their cowardly turning from the Saviour, he assures them that after his resurrection he would go before them into Galilee. Peter protested against such act of disloyalty by the disciples, and assured the Lord that though all the rest should forsake him, yet he would not. The Lord showed him how little he knew even of his own best resolve, telling him that on that very night he would deny him thrice. All the disciples said the same thing.

IV. The Agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32-42).

The clear vision of the coming anguish of the Cross, accentuated by the utter failure of the disciples to understand or believe, brought upon him an indescribable anguish of soul, so he took Peter, James, and John and went apart to pray. The cup of agony was not mere death, but the sacrificial death for sin, under the weight of the world's guilt.

1. The first prayer (vv. 35-38).

Notwithstanding the darkness of the hour, he prayed in faith accompanied with a willingness to obey. When he came and found the three sleeping instead of praying, he commanded them to watch and pray so as to be fortified against temptation.

V. The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus (vv. 43-52).

1. The sign to the mob (vv. 43-47). With the basest of hypocrisy Judas pointed out Jesus to the mob by a kiss, the sign of love.

2. Jesus forsaken by all (vv. 48-52).

At the sight of the Master's betrayal and arrest, one of his disciples attempted to defend him by resorting to the sword; but seeing that Jesus made no attempt at resistance, they all fled. Their courage failed them in the hour of trial. How little man knows of his weaknesses until the crucial hour.

VI. Jesus Before the Sanhedrin (vv. 53-65).

1. Contradictory testimony of false witnesses (vv. 53-59).

High Priest's Questions: (vv. 60-65).

(1) "What is it that these witness against thee?" To this Jesus was silent, showing that no evidence had yet been given worthy of answer.

(2) "Art thou the Christ?" To this he definitely replied: "I am" and quotes a Scripture passage which they recognize as referring to the Messiah. This claim they answer with buffeting and the most shameful treatment.

VII. Peter Denies Lord (vv. 66-72).

Though Peter loves Jesus, yet in the hour of supreme trial he fails. Grievous as his sin is, it is not like that of Judas. His failure was due to

1. Roasting self-defense (vv. 69-71).

2. Lack of watchfulness (v. 37).

3. Neglect of prayer (v. 38).

4. Service in the energy of the flesh (v. 47).

5. Following Jesus afar off (v. 54).

6. Seek comfort among the Lord's favorites (v. 67; compare Luke 22:55).

7. Open denial (vv. 68-72).

His backsliding really began when he shrank from the Cross.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Firing Squad.

A few days later I had orders to report back to divisional headquarters, about thirty miles behind the line. I reported to the A. P. M. (assistant provost marshal). He told me to report to billet No. 78 for quarters and rations.

It was about eight o'clock at night and I was tired and soon fell asleep in the straw of the billet. It was a miserable night outside, cold, and a drizzly rain was falling.

About two in the morning I was awakened by some one shaking me by the shoulder. Opening my eyes I saw a regimental sergeant major bending over me. He had a lighted lantern in his right hand. I started to ask him what was the matter, when he put his finger to his lips for silence and whispered:

"Get on your equipment, and, without any noise, come with me."

This greatly mystified me, but I obeyed his order.

Outside of the billet, I asked him what was up, but he shut me up with: "Don't ask questions, it's against orders. I don't know myself."

It was raining like the mischief.

We splashed along a muddy road for about fifteen minutes, finally stopping at the entrance of what must have been an old barn. In the darkness, I could hear pigs grunting, as if they had just been disturbed. In front of the door stood an officer in a mack (muckintosh). The R. S. M. went up to him, whispered something, and then left. This officer called to me, asked my name, number and regiment, at the same time, in the light of a lantern he was holding, making a notation in a little book.

When he had finished writing, he whispered:

"Go into that billet and wait orders and no talking. Understand?"

I stumbled into the barn and sat on the floor in the darkness. I could see no one, but could hear men breathing and moving; they seemed nervous and restless. I know I was.

During my wait, three other men entered. Then the officer poked his head in the door and ordered:

"Fall in, outside the billet, in single rank."

We fell in, standing at ease. Then he commanded:

"Squad—Shun! Number 1!"

There were twelve of us.

"Right—Turn! Left—Wheel! Quick—March!" And away we went. The rain was trickling down my back and I was shivering from the cold.

With the officer leading, we must have marched over an hour, plowing through the mud and occasionally stumbling into a shell hole in the road.

Buried With Honors.

when suddenly the officer made a left wheel, and we found ourselves in a sort of enclosed courtyard.

The dawn was breaking and the rain had ceased.

In front of us were four stacks of rifles, three to a stack.

The officer brought us to attention and gave the order to unpile arms. We each took a rifle. Giving us "Stand at ease," in a nervous and shaky voice, he informed:

"Men, you are here on a very solemn duty. You have been selected as a firing squad for the execution of a soldier, who, having been found guilty of a grievous crime against king and country, has been regularly and duly tried and sentenced to be shot at 3:28 a. m. this date. This sentence has been approved by the reviewing authority and ordered carried out. It is our duty to carry on with the sentence of the court."

"There are twelve rifles, one of which contains a blank cartridge, the other eleven containing ball cartridges. Every man is expected to do his duty and fire to kill. Take your orders from me. Squad—Shun!"

We came to attention. Then he left. My heart was of lead and my knees shook.

After standing at "attention" for what seemed a week, though in reality it could not have been over five minutes, we heard a low whispering in our rear and footsteps on the stone flagging of the courtyard.

Our officer reappeared and in a low, but firm voice, ordered:

"About—Turn!"

We turned about. In the gray light of dawn, a few yards in front of me, I could make out a brick wall. Against this wall was a dark form with a white square pinned on its breast. We were supposed to aim at this square. To the right of the form I noticed a white spot on the wall. This would be my target.

"Ready! Aim! Fire!"

The dark form sank into a huddled heap. My bullet sped on its way, and hit the whitish spot on the wall; I could see the splinters fly. Some one else had received the rifle containing the blank cartridge, but my mind was at ease, there was no blood of a Tommy on my hands.

"Order—Arms! About—Turn! Pile—Arms! Stand—Clear."

The stacks were re-formed.

"Quick—March! Right—Wheel!" And we left the scene of execution behind us.

It was now daylight. After marching about five minutes, we were dismissed with the following instructions from the officer in command:

"Return, alone, to your respective companies, and remember, no talking about this affair, or else it will go hard with the guilty ones."

We needed no urging to get away. I did not recognize any of the men on the firing squad; even the officer was a stranger to me.

The victim's relations and friends in Blighty will never know that he was executed; they will be under the impression that he died doing his bit for king and country.

In the public casualty lists his name will appear under the caption "Accidentally Killed," or "Died."

The day after the execution I received orders to report back to the line, and to keep a still tongue in my head.

Executions are a part of the day's work, but the part we hated most of all, I think—certainly the saddest. The British war department is thought by many people to be composed of rigid regulations all wound around with red tape. But it has a heart, and one of the evidences of this is the considerate way in which an execution is concealed and reported to the relative of the unfortunate man. They never know the truth. He is listed in the bulletins as among the "accidentally killed."

In the last ten years I have several times read stories in magazines of cowards changing, in a charge, to heroes. I used to laugh at it. It seemed easy for story-writers, but I said, "Men aren't made that way." But over in France I learned once that the streak of yellow can turn all white. I picked up the story, bit by bit, from the captain of the company, the sentries who guarded the poor fellow, as well as from my own observations. At first I did not realize the whole of his story, but after a week of investigation it stood out as clear in my mind as the mountains of my native West in the spring sunshine. It impressed me so much that I wrote it all down in rest billets on scraps of odd paper. The incidents are, as I say, every bit true; the feelings of the man are true—I know from all I underwent in the fighting over in France.

We will call him Albert Lloyd. That wasn't his name, but it will do:

Albert Lloyd was what the world terms a coward.

In London they called him a slacker.

His country had been at war nearly eighteen months, and still he was not in khaki.

He had no good reason for not enlisting, being alone in the world, having been educated in an orphan asylum, and there being no one dependent upon him for support. He had no good position to lose, and there was no sweetheart to tell him with her lips to go, while her eyes pleaded for him to stay.

Every time he saw a recruiting sergeant he'd slink around the corner out of sight, with a terrible fear gnawing at his heart. When passing the big recruiting posters, and on his way to business and back he passed many, he would pull down his cap and look the other way from that awful finger pointing at him, under the caption, "Your King and Country Need You;" or the boring eyes of Kitchener, which burned into his very soul, causing him to shudder.

Then the Zeppelin raids—during them, he used to crouch in a corner of his boarding-house cellar, whimpering like a whipped puppy and calling upon the Lord to protect him.

Even his landlady despised him, although she had to admit that he was "good pay."

He very seldom read the papers, but one morning he read the landlady put the morning paper at his place before he came down to breakfast. Taking his seat he read the flaring headline, "Conscription Bill Passed," and nearly fainted. Excusing himself, he stumbled upstairs to his bedroom, with the horror of it gnawing into his vitals.

Having saved up a few pounds, he decided not to leave the house, and to sham sickness, so he stayed in his room and had the landlady serve his meals there.

Every time there was a knock at the door he trembled all over, imagining it was a policeman who had come to take him away to the army.

One morning his fears were realized. Sure enough, there stood a policeman with the fatal paper. Taking it in his trembling hand he read that he, Albert Lloyd, was ordered to report himself to the nearest recruiting station for physical examination. He reported immediately, because he was afraid to disobey.

The doctor looked with approval upon Lloyd's six feet of physical perfection, and thought what a fine guardsman he would make, but examined his heart twice before he passed him as "physically fit;" it was beating so fast.

From the recruiting depot Lloyd was taken, with many others, in charge of a sergeant, to the training depot at Aldershot, where he was given an outfit of khaki, and drew his other equipment. He made a fine-looking soldier, except for the slight shrinking in his shoulders and the hunted look in his eyes.

At the training depot it does not take long to find out a man's character, and Lloyd was promptly dubbed "windy." In the English army "windy" means cowardly.

The smallest recruit in the barracks looked on him with contempt, and was not slow to show it in many ways.

Lloyd was a good soldier, learned quickly, obeyed every order promptly, never groused at the hardest fatigues. He was afraid to. He lived in deadly fear of the officers and "noncoms" over him. They also despised him.

One morning about three months after his enlistment Lloyd's company was paraded, and the names picked out for the next draft to France were read. When his name was called, he did not step out smartly, two paces to the front, and answer cheerfully, "Here, sir," as the others did. He just fainted in the ranks and was carried to barracks amid the sneers of the rest.

That night was an agony of misery to him. He could not sleep. Just cried and whimpered in his bunk, because on the morrow the draft was to sail for France, where he would see death on all sides, and perhaps be killed himself. On the steamer, crossing the channel, he would have jumped overboard to escape, but was afraid of drowning.

Arriving in France, he and the rest were huddled into cattle cars. On the side of each appeared in white letters, "Hommes 40, Chevaux 8." After hours of bumping over the uneven French roadbeds they arrived at the training base of Rouen.

At this place they were put through a week's rigid training in trench war-

Depends on the Company.

As to whether one should walk alone, or in company, authorities differ. For instance, Robert Louis Stevenson said that the only way to enjoy a walk is to take it alone. On the other hand, Mark Twain declared that the chief enjoyment of a walk lies not in the walk itself but in the talking that accompanies it.

Oak First for Tables.

Oak was the wood first used in tables then walnut came into general use in the middle of the seventeenth century. An early form of table was the chair table, convenient because it served the purpose of a seat when the top was lifted and stood against the side of the room. But gradually the table took its present form and use. It became the custom to leave the board upon the trestle instead of removing both, and in time the piece of furniture was called the table.

Have You a Manure Pile?

If you have, get it out on your fields where it will do some good. No, not with a wagon. You waste a full third of it if you do it that way, and you have a hard, dirty, disagreeable job besides. The easy way is the paying way. Get a Low Corn King spreader that will tear the manure into small pieces, discharge its load in four to seven minutes, and spread it in an even coat over the entire surface of the ground. That's the way to use stable manure. Then you can depend upon an increase of crops yield without having to plant more acreage than you can care for. Look at present prices of farm produce. Raise all you can. Buy and use a

Low Corn King Manure Spreader

Wheels just the right distance apart, and spread wide enough to top dress three rows of corn at once. Three sizes—small, medium and large. All narrow boxes. All steel frames with working parts of the spreader securely attached to the frame. Turns short. Drive from both rear wheels. Return apron driven by worm gear which insures even spreading up hill and down. Pull comes straight on steel frame. Solid two-inch rear axle working in roller bearings carries seventy-five per cent of the load. All-steel beater cannot warp, shrink, or rot. Built up to International Harvester standards of quality in every respect.

Buy a Corn King spreader and use it. The increased yield from a few acres will pay for your spreader this year. Come in and place your order now.
